It was a crazy day at the TV channel's weather desk. Suzie was meant to be on TV very soon and the weather forecast kept changing.

"I don't know if it is going to be a windy or sunny day. How can I go on TV and tell everyone if I don't know?" she asked the camera man, but it was soon time to go on so she had to get on with it.

"Good morning! It is going to be the warmest day today," Suzie said. Then, she glanced at her laptop. "Oh dear, now it says it is going to rain and it's going to be much wetter. In fact, it is going to be the wettest day for a long time. Make sure you take an umbrella," she grinned.

Suzie clicked the mouse and the screen changed. "In the north, there will be colder weather but it will be very sunny. Oops! Now it says it will be hotter. Actually, it will be the hottest day since the summer. It will also be quite dusty as it will be windy too," she frowned. "If you are going out of the door today, take an umbrella, a woolly hat, sunglasses and some sun cream. Goodbye!" she laughed.
